REAFFIRM DOMINIONS POLICY FOR OWN NAVIES

Imperial Conference Near Finality On Vital Interests

STORE OIL FUEL Supplies To Be Placed At All Important Naval Bases

(Reuter's Service)
London, July 28.—The Imperial Conference discussions are reaching a state of finality. It is understood that the policy laid down in 1917, under which each Dominion was to provide its own navy and protect its own bases, has been reaffirmed.

The Conference drew attention to the growing importance of oil fuel, and is now considering the provision of oil storage at all important naval bases.

As a consequence of the reaffirmation that rates on the mercantile marine will bulk more largely during war-time operations in the future, it is urged that the Dominions should be prepared to undertake the local control of communications and to protect coastal trade where possible with light cruisers and submarines, for which the Dominions will train their own personnel.

Importance is also believed to be attached by the Conference to Imperial co-ordination of the conveyance system, the Dominions encouraging the construction of merchantmen readily convertible with weapons of defense and offense to act as escorts.

As far as can be ascertained, the conference, after accepting the principle of separate navies, has devoted its energies towards mutual co-operation and co-ordination, with a view to maintaining vital sea communications in time of war and the building-up of navies strong enough to combat likely enemies.

London, July 28.—While the Pacific question has occupied much of the time of the Imperial Conference, rapid progress has been made with other subjects, such as the constitutional question and the naval defense of the Empire. It is hoped to dispose of the outstanding questions by the week-end.

The conference is at present discussing air communications. The report of the special committee on the subject has not been published, but it is understood that it discusses several schemes based roughly on the early institution of a permanent service of airships to Egypt, with experimental flights in the direction of India, Australia and South Africa developing subsequently into a permanent regular service to those Dominions.

The latter would involve a considerable addition to the airship fleet, costing, according to the newspapers, £10,000,000. Reuter, however, has reason to believe that £6,000,000 would be nearer the mark. The scheme, if adopted, would also involve the establishment of mooring-mast stations, in which connection it is suggested that two in Australia and one each in Ceylon, Kenya and South Africa would suffice.

IMPERIALISM IS NOT FRENCH AIM SAYS MILLERAND

(Reuter's Service)
Paris, July 26.—As the guest of the city of Harro and the French Maritime Colonial League President Millerand today attended the International regatta, and reviewed the French Channel Squadron and allied warships which were anchored in the roadstead. The British cruiser Dauntless and the American armored cruiser Pittsburg were especially conspicuous.

Speaking at a dinner at the Chamber of Commerce, the President said that France had had to fight and pay dearly for peace. Now she meant to keep it and to provide in every way against any surprise. Otherwise France had no ambition. "French Imperialism" was a meaningless expression, M. Millerand concluded.

Woman Preacher Invades Church Of England Pulpit

Miss Maude Royden, leader of a movement to induce the Church of England to admit women preachers to its pulpits, has conducted a week-day service in St. Paul's and St. Botolph's, despite the protest of the Right Rev. Arthur P. W. Ingram, the Bishop of London. The appearance of the woman in the pulpit, an innovation in the Anglican Church, brought crowds to the service. Miss Royden was attired in a surplice and a close-fitting headress of dark blue.

TAXICAB COMPANY AND F. R. BARRETT SUED FOR BIG SUM

Mrs. J. A. Collins Of Tsingtao, Victim In Accident, Asks For Tls. 8,900

Damages in the sum of Tals 8,900 are asked from the Shanghai Taxicab Company and Mr. F. R. Barrett by Mrs. J. A. Collins of Tsingtao in a suit that she has filed in the United States Court for China as an outcome of a motor accident.

Mrs. Collins was about to leave Shanghai after a visit with friends on January 15 last and had summoned a taxicab to take her to her steamer. On the way to the steamer the taxicab collided with another car driven by Mr. F. R. Barrett on Rue Roi Albert.

In her petition Mrs. Collins asserts that she suffered a double fracture of the pelvis and three broken ribs besides other injuries as a result of which she was confined first in a hospital for nine weeks and in her home five months. She says her physician has informed her that she will suffer from the injuries received for years and her health may be permanently impaired.

Mrs. Collins, who is now in Tsingtao, is represented in the action by Mr. Stirling Fessenden of the firm of Fessenden and Holcomb.

"Evict Me? Not Now, I've Gone," Is Editor's Plea

The proceedings begun in the French consular court yesterday by M. Matteo Bos, manager of the Presse Orientale, to eject M. Vandelet, editor of L'Echo du Chine, from the apartment owned by the former came to an abrupt halt when Mr. Vandelet announced that he had already left the apartment and turned in the key.

M. Vandelet, counsel for the plaintiff, read the reasons for the request of ejection, which included a charge that Mr. Vandelet attempted to break into a garage of Mr. Bos, and menaced him with threats.

Mr. Vandelet, in defense, startled the court by saying he had moved to other parts in the morning. The request for ejection was forthwith recalled.

TELEGRAMS DELAYED

The Chinese Telegraph Administration announces that the wires North and West of Nanking have been interrupted on account of the flood in the Upper Yangtze Districts and telegrams between here and point beyond Nanking are subject to delay of about one day. Messages are being sent via the Shanghai-Chefoo cable.

JAPAN'S REPLY IS SATISFACTORY OFFICIALS SAY

Way Now Clear For Setting Time And Place Of The Conference

WILL CONSIDER AGENDA Program To Be Made Of All Moot Subjects Before Delegates Come

(Reuter's Service)
Washington, July 28.—Official circles are most satisfied at Japan's reply regarding the Pacific conference. The way is now clear, they say, for preliminary negotiation as to the time and place of the meeting and details of procedure, and a comprehensive consideration of the agenda before the delegations assemble is regarded as assured.

American officials consider that the Japanese opinion as to the subjects not for discussion is not a condition of the Japanese acceptance, but is merely a forecast of the Japanese attitude when negotiations on the agenda are begun.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Shanghai, July 29.—A telegraphic correction has now been received to the telegram received yesterday from Washington, dealing with the announcement by Secretary of State Hughes as to the reception of the Japanese reply to the invitation to a conference.

The sentence in which the error occurred should read as follows: "The Japanese Government (said Mr. Hughes) is of opinion that the subjects of discussion should be confined to those directly involved in the general question of disarmament, and that the introduction of problems solely concerning particular Powers, or of matters which might be regarded as faits accomplis, should be scrupulously avoided."

SKIPPER'S FOLLY SOLD FOR Tls 8,900

"The Skipper's Folly," a piece of property on Hungjiao Road near the Municipal nurseries, formerly owned by the late A. E. Inwood, was sold at public auction yesterday to Brodie A. Clarke. The price was Tals 8,900. The property includes nearly seven mow of land and a small dwelling house.

Automobile Show Assured For Shanghai This Fall

An international automobile show for Shanghai next autumn is now a certainty. Members of the automobile and associated trades held a meeting yesterday at which action was taken to insure this result. The meeting was held at the Palace hotel and was attended by principals or representatives of practically every firm in Shanghai that deals in automotive products.

Besides the motor car and motor truck men there were representatives of all the oil and tire companies, of accessory dealers, and of the Good Roads Movement in China.

At the conclusion of the meeting a provisional committee was appointed to take entire charge of organizing the exhibition, and to arrange the details of finance, location, publicity and management. Arthur West, who initiated the movement for an automobile show in Shanghai, was appointed general manager of the enterprise, with instructions to work under the direction of the committee and to report to it periodically as the work proceeds.

Acting for the committee, Mr. West will at once proceed with the work of finding a suitable location for the show, preparing estimates of cost, and to advertise the exhibition throughout North China. A centrally located office will be opened immediately to expedite the work of preparing the show.

INTERNATIONAL SHOW
The members of the trade who assembled at the meeting stressed the point that the show should be international, with the traders of all countries now doing business in China having an equal chance. The committee that was named comprises seven members, but it was stipulated that this committee should have power to increase its membership at its own discretion.

BRITAIN NOW IS FRAMING A NEW NOTE TO FRANCE

Cordial Answer Made By Cabinet As To Silesia

URGE JOINT ACT

Deprecate Lone Venture Apparently Favored Across Channel

(Reuter's Service)
London, July 28.—Today's Cabinet meeting, which was attended by the Dominion representatives, formulated a note to France which, it is understood, emphasizes the necessity of joint Anglo-French action in Upper Silesia. Instead of the independent ventures which are apparently favored in some quarters in France.

The note is couched in conciliatory terms and it is hoped it will smooth away any difficulties, although the proposed meeting of the Supreme Council on August 4 is at present regarded as impossible in consequence of the recent action of the French Government.

London, July 28.—The Cabinet today discussed the latest Upper Silesian development. It is understood that the meeting of the Supreme Council may again be somewhat delayed.

Reuter's Agency learns that the German Foreign Minister has handed the French Ambassador at Berlin a note stating that the German Government will acknowledge the decision of the Supreme Council, which, it understands, is to meet shortly to deal with the question of the transport of a French division through Germany.

With regard to this note, it is authoritatively explained in London that Germany is entirely under the Treaty of Versailles, and refuses the French request for the transport of troops, but the German Government's reply shows that it is willing to submit what it considers a breach of the Treaty to the three Powers collectively.

End Of War Sept. 1 Premier's Assertion

(Reuter's Service)
London, July 28.—In the House of Commons today, asked as to whether he was able to announce the approximate date of the official termination of the war, Mr. Lloyd George replied that this would be September 1 next, except as regards Turkey.

Search Even Babies' Go-Carts For Contraband Goods

An interesting photograph showing French Customs officials searching "traffic." On the customs line established by the Allies on the borders of occupied Germany so much smuggling has been going on in the districts that the officials find it necessary to search even the most unpretentious vehicles and this youngster's wagon is not excepted.

Soviet Plans Gilded Grub Street And Poem Foundry

By Bruce Hopper

GONE is the thin, haggard face of inspired Bohemia, gone like the snows of yesterday, for Moscow has set up a House of Learning, where Maxim Gorky, et Co. manufacture literature to order under the indulgent patronage of the Soviet state.

No more do the hack scribbles and penny-a-liners haunt the shades of the Kremlin, waiting to pounce upon passing friends in the Red Square in the hope of being invited to dine on caviar and borsch. For the Department of Fine Arts is beneficent, and any faithful Bolshevik acquainted with art or science may have free lodgings in the House of the Learned, there to create masterpieces and pursue bacteria in leather cushion comfort.

To spread the news of the activities of the Commissariat of Education three Russian writers, Skitaletz, Novikov and Sivacheff, are reported as having arrived in China, and they intend to visit Harbin. They report vast schemes for training the public mind in the way it should go, printing establishments to reproduce the classics of all nations, and a ten year program for the "Universal Literature."

This last institution has 2,000 authors, interpreters and book reviewers working under the direction of Maxim Gorky. When they have completed the work of putting universal classics into Russian the building will become a Pantheon of Literature.

CAFE OF POETS, TOO

When not in the House of the Learned the poets and authors are to be found in the Caffe of Art, or Caffe of the Poets. Conversation between men of creative genius is encouraged, and every effort made to surround them with that freedom from worldly care which is supposed to induce inspirational literature.

Information concerning the success of the community production of literature has been very meager. The Bolshevik poetry coming out of Russia during the last two years does not suggest that reverence for old masters to which the House of Learning lays claim. For three years the red flame of destruction swept unchecked through the halls of art as well as politics. Form, rules, traditional subject matter, everything belonging to the past was thrown on the fire in the name of the proletariat.

As they tried to make the statesman the equal of the street sweeper, so they tried to make the literary genius a collaborator with the melodramatic hack. Round tables were formed at which writers of all degrees of intellect discussed possible plots, dramatic situations, and informative essays which would extol the merit of Soviet Russia. None of the writers received more rations than the others. The great and monstrously futile principle of equalization never found a more ridiculous expression. THE HOUSE OF SOLOMON! The aspirations of the House of the Learned would indicate the end of the propaganda literature. At least, mobilization of writing talent to government service prevents great increase of anti-Soviet journalism. On his point, as in the question of private enterprise, the Soviets have capitulated to the old order of things. The 2,000 writers of the House of the Learned are translating the classics of all tongues, and in them will be found but little inspiration for that kind of production known as Bolshevik poetry, or the hectic smear called Futurist painting. It is interesting to remember that something similar to the House of Learning was proposed by Bacon in his philosophical romance, the New Atlantis. Little did Bacon dream that the first attempt to establish his House of Solomon would be in far off Moscow. The experiment is a challenge to the accepted theory that patronage in literature kills inspiration. Much of our finest bits, such as many of Shakespeare's sonnets, and all of Dryden's long poems, were written for a patron's financial smile. Pope was the first Englishman of letters to make himself independent by his writing. He shocked the world by dedicating his translation of Homer to the dramatist Congreve, instead of some lord, or wealthy dilettante. There is an artificial sound to Caffe of the Poets in Moscow. But great literature has been made to order in the past, such as Addison's poem "The Campaign" celebrating Marlborough's victory at Blenheim. Perhaps the made-to-order method will be successful in Russia. Upon receiving orders from the high command the Grub Streeters, who are now enjoying a fat living on the state, will repair to the cafe and assist in the effort of making Moscow society brilliant Hotel d'Amboinville. Then the patient world will wait for another Pope to appear with a Dunciad, or a new Moliere with a Precieuses Ridicules, to laugh the made-to-order literateurs out of existence.

PREDICTS NEW TYPE OF SHIP DRIVEN BY GAS

(Reuter's Service)
London, July 28.—At the annual meeting of Sir W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth & Co. Limited, Sir Glynn West, Chairman, said those most qualified to judge had expressed the opinion that internal combustion engines would gradually replace other forms of motive power and that this would ultimately lead to the construction of a new type of ship.

TUCHUNS WATCH WU PEI-FU FEARING HE WILL SEIZE HANKOW

Chang Tso-lin's Anhui Henchman Sends Troops—Censorship Is On But No Heavy Fighting Believed To Have Taken Place—Gunboats Ready At Many Points In Disturbed Area—New War Zone Has Developed In Kwangtung

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)
Hankow, July 28 (9:25 p.m.)—Hsiao Yao-nan, commander of the 25th division, arrived here this afternoon with more troops. They are now quartered at Wu-chang and Hankow. The resignation of Wang Chan-yuan, Tuchun of Hupeh, has been rejected by the Peking Cabinet.

In order to see that Wu Pei-fu does not acquire too much power in the present conflict, Chang Tso-lin, the Mukden tuchun, may send men from Anhui to keep the balance of power. The excitement for a actual fighting here is quieting down. Reports of looting in Changsha have not been confirmed. Only minor disturbances are reported.

There is still no news of any fighting, and no alarm is shown here. Troops continue to be transported up-river. A strict censorship over telegrams has been imposed here. HSIUNG GOES TO CHUNGKING Ichang, July 28.—General Hsiung K'eh-wu, ex-Tuchun of Szechuen, after visiting Wuchang and Changsha, left this morning for Chungking on board the s.s. Anning, which is making her maiden trip. One foreigner who called on General Hsiung found him very reticent in regard to political affairs. As the telegrams are still down, Reuter's correspondent is only able to send the foregoing news by post.

Wang Clamps Censor Lid On All News Of Fighting (Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)
Hankow, July 28 (5:15 p.m.)—Strict censorship on press reports in all newspapers are warned by Wang Chan-yuan, Tuchun of Hupeh, to withholding all news that is without foundation. News of fighting between the two factions is especially suppressed. Only two papers in the Japanese Censorship are bold enough to publish news which endangers Wang's prestige or position. Telegrams are also severely censored.

Both THE CHINA PRESS correspondents, Josef W. Hall and Peter Jowett met with difficulty in despatching their messages yesterday. Jowett went to Wang's military headquarters at Liu-chiamiao on the Peking-Hankow Railway near the bank of the Yangtze to investigate and was suspected as being a spy by the troops and the police, who threatened arrest. However, Jowett succeeded in establishing his identity as a newspaper correspondent for American publications.

The rolling stocks along the Peking-Hankow Railway are scanty, principally because they had been seized for troops. WU'S MEN ON WAY Hsiao Yao-nan, the henchman of General Wu Pei-fu, has begun the despatch of troops of the 25th division and several hundreds of them arrived here this morning. More are expected to arrive tomorrow. A portion of the forces already on the scene has been placed on guard in Hankow.

General Chang Tso-lin, Tuchun of Fengtien, has instructed Chang Wen-sung, Tuchun of Anhui, to despatch one brigade to watch the movement of troops along the Yangtze.

Dr. Sun Yat-sen, the Southern president, is reported to be supplying Hunan with ammunition. General Chao Heng-ti, commander-in-chief of the Hunan troops, fearing the loss of his post to some Kuomintang leader, has wavered in his faith with the Kuomintang people and is striving hard for an amicable settlement. Hunan troops are streaming towards Hupeh in boats, because trains along the Yochow-Changsha railway have already been detained by Wang Chan-yuan at the Wuchang end.

CHINESE AID IS APPRECIATED BY FRENCH BANK

(Reuter's Service)
Paris, July 26.—At yesterday's meeting of shareholders of the Banque Industrielle de Chine, Senator Berthelot, who presided, was supported by Mr. Wong Tseng-tse, representing the Chinese Government, and Count de Perol, representing the Peking Syndicate.

The newspapers, commenting on the meeting, consider the situation as now most hopeful. Hardly any doubt is felt as to the bank's ability to weather the crisis and to resume business soon. The sensible and far-seeing attitude adopted by the Chinese Government in this matter is most favorably commented upon.

In reply to the inquiries in the correspondence columns of THE CHINA PRESS as to the status of the free deposit bonds held by the Banque Industrielle de Chine the local manager declares that all such bonds will be given to their owners upon demand.

The manager points out that in the statement of the bank, published July 3, mention was made of government bonds for the liberated regions, and other free deposit bonds. If the bonds are actually free, and not held as security for loans, the owners may claim them at any time. If the bonds are in the Shanghai bank they will be delivered at once; if in Paris the bank officials will have them sent to Shanghai, or delivered to any agent the owner wishes.

STRIKERS GO TO PRAY; POLICEMEN CHOP DOWN FIFTY

Kobe Street Is Scene Of Onslaught With Sabres Against Paraders (Reuter's Pacific Service)
Kobe, July 29.—The Kawasaki and Mitsubishi strikers marched in procession this morning to the Nagata and Nanko shrines for the purpose of offering prayers, and enlisting the support of the Gods in the struggle.

The authorities yesterday prohibited a procession, which nevertheless formed, and early came into conflict with the police. Stones and other missiles were thrown at the police, a number of whom were wounded. The police thereupon drew their sabres and charged the crowd, wounding 50 of their number.

Ten of them were so seriously wounded as to necessitate their being taken to hospital, among them being a reporter of the Mainichi. The condition of two of them is critical. The procession was finally dispersed, but feeling is running high. Vladivostok, July 29.—The strike here is spreading. The railway employees who have joined the strike have been replaced by Kappellites.

nan, has arrived at Nienko and Hsuehnamiao, while the headquarters of the division has been established at Hsuehnamiao. General Hsiao is now conferring with General Wang Chan-yuan.

Heavy Fighting Again Reported In Kwangtung

Hongkong, July 29.—Heavy fighting has broken out in the region of Hsuehnamiao where the Cantonese are attacking General Shen Hung-ying. It is reported that strong Kwangsi forces are assembling at Lungchow.

The only Hsuehnamiao on the map is in Kwangtung, about 100 miles northeast of Canton, on the East River.

KWANGSI FIGHT ENDS

Canton, July 26.—It is reported here that the fighting in Kwangsi is now at an end, and that General Chen Ching-ming is making Nanjing his headquarters.

The appointments of civil officials in Kwangsi will only be made when the people of that Province fully approve, and therefore no important appointments are yet announced.

Kweichow General Will Send Army South

Peking, July 27.—The Government has received no confirmation of the reports in circulation that General Lu Yang-tung has arrived in Shanghai. No detailed reports have as yet been received regarding the situation in Kwangsi and Kwangtung, but General Lu Tao, Commander-in-Chief of Kweichow, has reported to the Government that in response to an appeal from General Lu Yang-tung for military assistance he is planning to dispatch a body of troops. Apparently General Lu has handed over all his forces to General Shen Hung-ying, as the latter has issued a circular letter, supporting the confederation scheme and stating that he is trying to save the situation in Kwangsi.

Rebelling Officers Are Fighting Near Yochow

Peking, July 27.—It is officially stated that local reports of the fighting between Hunan and Hupeh troops have been greatly exaggerated. A small body of the Hunan forces have advanced to Lutowko, near Yochow, but it is stated that they are not operating under the orders of General Chao Heng-ti, but are led by discontented subordinate officers. It has been officially reported to the Cabinet that it is not the desire of General Chao to stir up trouble between Hunan and Hupeh. General Chao reports that there is a clear understanding between Hunan and Hupeh on the subject of defense and that he himself does not mean to disturb the peace, as his relations with General Wang Chan-yuan are friendly.

CHANG TO MIX IN

The tuchun of Kiangsi, General Chen Kuang-yuan, has reported that he is sending a force of two divisions and four brigades under the command of General Sung Ho-kun tomorrow to deal with the situation at Lutowko. General Chang Tso-lin is expected to send two or three brigades to Hankow, but this will not be permitted to interfere with his expedition to Unga.

Two Want Airplanes For Use In War Of Tuchuns

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)
Peking, July 29.—General Wang Chan-yuan, Tuchun of Hupeh, has requested the Aeronautical Department to permit the use of four airplanes in connection with his combat with the invading Hunanese troops. He has the support of Chang Tso-lin, who has also repeatedly asked for a number of these planes for his Mongolian Expedition.

The Aeronautical Department, however, is placed in a very embarrassing predicament because of the terms of the loan concluded between it and Messrs. Vickers, which provide that no machines are to be used for military operations.

Chang Tso-lin, meanwhile, is holding up his Mongolian Expedition under the pretext that his services may be required in Hupeh. He has secured more money from the Ministry of Finance and more ammunition from the War Department. He has informed Wang Chan-yuan that he would be ready to march on Changsha, if necessary. Wang is reported to have asked the Hankow branch of the Bank of China for a loan for military expenses, but the Shanghai head office has received no such information. No telegrams have come through on the Hupeh situation at all.

Foreign Gunboats Will Distributed Up Yangtze

British and American consular and naval offices at Shanghai have had no reports of recent developments from the troubled area south of Hankow, it was stated yesterday. Since the first dispatch was received telling that an outbreak had occurred at Changsha and that portions of the city had been burned and looted no further word had filtered through from that quarter. Reports received yesterday from Hankow tell that troops continue to arrive there.

No particular concern is felt here for the safety of foreigners and foreign interests at Changsha, as the American gunboat Villalobos and the British gunboat Woodcock both are stationed there.

Foreign interests at Hankow are being guarded by the American light cruiser Albany and the gunboat Queros and by the British light cruiser Cairo and the gunboat Gnat while it is reported also that Japanese gunboats are on the scene.

Three other American gunboats are up the Yangtze, the Hsiao at Ichang and the Palos and Monocacy at Chungking.

Little Surface Evidence Of Crisis Along Yangtze

Travellers from up the Yangtze arriving yesterday reported little or no excitement at most points along the river, including Hankow and Wuchang.

Commencement of movement of troops was apparent early in the week in the vicinity of Yochow, they state, and men were being moved toward that point by boats from Wuchang, but there was little to indicate any imminent clash. But one report of fighting had reached Hankow up to Tuesday night, and this was an unconfirmed rumor of skirmishing on the Hupeh-Hunan border.

With the cruisers Cairo and Albany and several of the British and American gunboats at port, residents of the concessions at Hankow were completely confident of their security even though trouble should break out across the river. There was no evidence of an exodus of refugees toward the North.

The almost entire absence of interest in the Hupeh-Hunan crisis among Shanghai Chinese is a fact which strikes local students of Chinese politics as "curious." Ordinarily it would be the main topic in every tea-shop and general gathering place in the city and the embarrassment and unpopularity of Tuchun Wang Chan-yuan would have provided incentive for dozens of meetings and started a deluge of telegrams in the direction of Peking. The apparent explanation is that Shanghai Chinese are at present too busily engaged in organizing stock exchanges to take any note of such extraneous matters as wars and politics.

When asked for an opinion regarding the Hupeh mix-up the average prominent Chinese here assumes a look of polite indifference, breathes a pious platitude about the sublimity of universal peace, a sign for its seeming remoteness, and then brightens up and counters with a call for his questioner's impressions as to the reliability of the new shaving soap and loss paper exchange—and doesn't he think that the formation of an exchange to promote the sale of eat might would be a boon to business and a stride forward in the development of the community?

Turn Out Oppressor Wang, Union Demands

The Union of Organizations of Shanghai yesterday despatched a telegram to General Wu Pei-fu, protesting against his movement of troops towards Hupeh to reinforce Tuchun Wang Chan-yuan. The message stated that Wang had oppressed Hupeh for several years and people there are delighted with the opportunity of throwing him out.

What Wu should do is to join hands, says the message, with the Southwestern provinces and oust Wang and then turn his forces against the pro-Japanese bandit, Chang Tso-lin at Mukden.

Chao Is Caught Between The Horns Of A Dilemma

(China Press Correspondence)
Peking, July 27.—Military operations in the impending war between Hunan and Hupeh have already begun, according to advices received in Peking, the Hunan troops have already been mobilized and advance guards have had a brush with a force of Hupeh men.

The situation is regarded as especially serious and the foreign residents in those provinces are said to be planning an exodus.

Many of them have already asked their legations to see that they are properly protected.

In foreign circles it is generally held that General Chao Heng-ti of Hunan is being forced into a war with Hupeh and that neither he nor his friends are optimistic over the outcome.

In General Chao's army are many soldiers and officers whose homes are in Hupeh. These men are all in the party opposing General Wang Chan-yuan and it is said they have insisted that if General Chao does not attack Wang's forces, they will withdraw. Rather than have a mutiny on his hands which would undoubtedly prove his political undoing, Chao has consented to lead his army against the Hupeh General.

General Wang, whose responsibility for the mutinies at Wuchang and Ichang was generally conceded, seems to be as strong as ever according to the reports received and he is counting on the support of Chang Tso-lin to maintain his position even in the face of strong military opposition.

Another force said to be impelling Chao to war is Kwangtung. Chao is said to have been told rather bluntly that unless he attacks Hupeh and gets Wang out of the way, Kwangtung will attack him. Thus he is between the horns of a dilemma. He must get a victory over Wang for Kwangtung. He doesn't relish either but is taking the war with Wang as the lesser of two dangers.

Uphold Wang Is Order Of Mukden Tuchun To Wu Pei-fu

(China Press Correspondence)
Peking, July 27.—Indications that General Wang Chan-yuan is to be maintained in his position at all costs, came to foreign centers from many sources today and one of the most disconcerting of the messages was that General Chang Tso-lin, who has so far kept Wang in power, will give up his Unga trip and to the aid of the third Super Tuchun.

The Peking Government has officially said that Wang merits removal but President Hsu Shih-chang told a delegation of Hupeh residents that he was not in a position to remove him. This reply was taken as proof that Chang Tso-lin was dictating the Government's action following the mutinies in Ichang and Wuchang.

Chang Tso-lin has given one excuse after another for failing to start his Unga expedition and as he usually gives the one that does not answer for his action, it is now believed that the postponement a few days ago was due to the situation in Hunan and Hupeh.

REPORT HUNAN SUCCESS
Reports on the situation in the Hupeh-Hunan war were conflicting today. Foreign circles which have taken a special interest in the situation, received reports that the skirmishes have gone against the Hupeh people and that the Hunan forces threaten to follow up their success.

Tao Kun apparently stands with Chang in the matter of support for Wang Chan-yuan, on the ground that the Super-Tuchuns should stand together for the mutual protection of their rights. Just what hold Wang has on the other members of the triumvirate is not known but it apparently is a strange hold.

Tao Kun is said to have telegraphed to Wang in response to a call for help, that General Wu Pei-fu had been instructed to save him. Wu Pei-fu who is generally reported to be after Wang's position, has not ordered that one division be sent to aid the Hupeh Tuchun.

WU ALSO MAY GO
Wang told that the situation was becoming serious, especially as to foreigners. General Wu replied that if the situation became really grave, he would go personally to the front and direct his men. Until the condition demands his presence, General Hsiao Yao-nan will command the division.

Some of those in official circles are said to have proposed that General Hsiao be made assistant military director in Hupeh to lend a better face to the troops of that province. Others have suggested that General Wu be made the High Inspecting General.

No action has been taken as yet on either of these proposals and so long as General Chang Tso-lin and Tao Kun are determined to stand by Wang, there is likely to be no change in the situation.

The Hunan forces have made Yochow their base of operations and they are said to be as well if not better equipped than the Hupeh forces.

Telegrams from the South indicate that the situation is taken more seriously there than in the north and that the war between the two provinces promises to affect the political situation in the entire Yangtze Valley.

While Chang Tso-lin will not go personally to Mongolia it is said that some of his troops will go at least as far as Manchuria. Whether they will actually turn westward and try to reclaim Unga is a question. They are not generally considered to be strong enough to withstand a hard campaign in the late summer and fall.

Chang however will keep up his threats, it is said, and in the meantime special emissaries will go to Outer Mongolia and try to gain by talking what Chang was originally supposed to do by fighting.

At least one division of Chang's troops will be sent to Hupeh, it was learned from authoritative sources today. This will be done on the ground that Hupeh being loyal to the Northern Government is entitled to its fullest support.

NOR WANG BUT HUPEH

Chang has already said that the situation is not one in which Wang's counts personality but that the province of Hupeh must be protected. In political discussions today however it was pointed out that the Government probably could have saved itself from all this trouble by removing Wang when it was asked by the Hupeh residents to do so. A strong General could have taken over his troops and have maintained peace and thus would have satisfied the Hupeh men in General Chao Heng-ti's army who are now making the war possible.

The Hupeh people or some of them at least apparently are willing to have the issue fought on the belief that even if Hupeh is defeated, they will gain by the ultimate expulsion of General Wang Chan-yuan.

JAPANESE TAKE OVER SHANTUNG GERMAN CREDITS

(China Press Correspondence)
Peking, July 28.—Japanese have found many new methods of making money for their Shantung administration since taking over the former German rights there and as money makers they have probably proved to be superior to the Germans, say our correspondent's informants in Shantung.

In all the areas where the Japanese have taken over the administration of affairs and there are several such areas not covered by the special treaty, the Japanese have imposed taxes on business registration, real estate, wine and tobacco, salt, opium and other commodities. In addition they have heavy duties on the revenues from all these go into Japanese coffers.

Real estate titles are in many cases, hopelessly obscured by Japanese transactions. When Shantung and other points were taken over, the Japanese found that many Chinese were in debt to the Germans. Where the Germans lent money, they took mortgages on real estate. The Germans were getting along with the Chinese, but the Japanese have not been so forthcoming. The Japanese have ordered that all Chinese owing money to the German lenders must pay it to a special Japanese bureau.

Now, the Japanese claim that as successors they are entitled to all the debts owed to the Germans. These debts were of a personal nature and the German government was not involved in them. The Japanese however have ordered that all Chinese owing money to the German lenders must pay it to a special Japanese bureau.

In many cases where the Chinese did not or could not pay, the mortgages were foreclosed and the property taken over. It is estimated that there is still owing the Japanese as successors to the Germans, $562,000 in large loans and about 50,000 marks in smaller amounts. These debts are represented by some forty Chinese land holders who own amounts ranging from $2,000 to $50,000.

Tsingtau according to the investigators is now as much as a German city as it was a German city before the fall of the forts in 1914. In Tsingtau there are military courts for handling military cases and a special military court for trying criminal cases arising inside the city proper.

The civil courts are also well established. The harbor administration, the municipal affairs, collection of taxes and fees is done entirely by Japanese. The revenues in Tsingtau alone amount to about $500,000 a year.

OPPOSE JAPANESE TRAINING
Peking, July 28.—Students, merchants and patriotic Chinese generally are raising strong opposition to the plan of the Central Government to have Japanese officers train a special police force to take over the duties of the military railroad guards in Shantung.

The Chinese declare that if this plan is followed, it will amount to a confession that China is unable to train her own military forces. They also claim that should the Japanese direct the training, Japanese control in Shantung would be as firm as ever.

The plan was proposed by Japan who evinced a willingness to withdraw her forces from the rail zone on condition that an efficient force was organized to protect the railroad and the Japanese interest and residents along the line.

American Cotton Crop Fair; Japan Is Heavier Buyer

(Reuter's Service)
New York, June 24 (by mail).—Japanese interests have been the heaviest buyers of actual cotton recently, and cotton is going forward steadily to that country.

Reports received here from Japan say that stocks of American cotton in that country are light and that the textile industry is speeding up. On the other hand, spinners of Europe and America show little disposition to secure their requirements under the present market conditions.

Inquiries for fair sized lots come occasionally, but there is no steady buying in any part of the belt except the Japanese demand already noted.

New York, July 1. (by mail).—Taking the cotton crop as a whole, it has had fairly good weather all the week, and is making satisfactory progress, with the exception of the boll-weevil talk from Texas.

Investigation shows that very similar reports were coming in from Texas at this time last year, yet the crop turned out slightly in excess of the ten-year average.

Eastern sections of the belt have been getting ample moisture the latter part of the week and seem to be in pretty good shape. Spot offerings have dried up, however, and the basis has advanced sharply in the last few days.

China Silks Are In Greater Demand As Japan Shows Decline

(Reuter's Service)
New York, June 30. (by mail).—The feature of the American raw silk market this week is the strength of Canton, stocks of which are said to be rather scarce. There is a good demand for spot supplies of this material and prices are firm and advancing. China steams are also higher.

Japans are weaker all along the line, quotations on the most active grades having declined from 15 to 35 cents during the week. The market is slightly depressed, as very few orders for Japan silk are being placed and it is highly improbable that business will improve until after the great national holiday, July 4.

The silk goods market is exceptionally active. A continuation of the heavy demand for Canton crepe fabrics is reported, while the call for silk hose is far in excess of the supply, leading manufacturers being so well sold up for several weeks that they are unable to accept further business for spot delivery.

Silk underwear is extremely popular just now, sales during June having exceeded the expectations of even the most sanguine members of the trade.

The demand for silk goods of all kinds is said to be increasing in the West, unusually large orders having been received this week from Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco and St. Paul.

It is observable that washable white silk is an active seller, and there is a shortage of this material in some sections of the market. The demand for ribbons is also on the increase. This is attributed to the action of the large department stores, which have recently been devoting more space to the display of ribbons.

Agriculture College Given Registration By Chinese Govt.

(China Press Correspondence)
Nanking, July 23.—The College of Agriculture of the University of Nanking has been registered in the Ministry of Education at Peking, according to the mandate issued by the Ministry on July 21.

The registered college opened in the fall of 1914. Prof. Joseph Bailey, originator of Arbor Day in China, is the first dean of the College. The College has received official sanction and support from the Ministry of Commerce and Agriculture at Peking, and from the governors of the provinces of Kiangsu, Anhwei, Kailau, Kiangsi, Shantung, Yunnan.

The college is also co-operating with the International Committee on the Improvement of Agriculture in China, the Chinese Cotton Mills Owners Association, the Shanghai-Cotton Adulteration Association, and the Bureau for the Improvement of the Cotton Industry in China.

There has been close co-operation between the recognized College and the Department of Agriculture in the United States. Seeds, plants, specimens, and information of various kinds have been secured and exchanged. An arrangement has been made between Dr. Walker A. Swingle of the Department of Agriculture of America and Dean John H. Reiser of the College whereby Dr. Swingle's secretary Miss Katherine H. Wead is loaned to the University for one year to help collect and index agricultural and botanical work in China.

To date 24 men have graduated from the college representing more than ten Middle Schools from seven provinces. The college is now staffed by the four co-operating missions. Northern Presbyterian have two; the Foreign Christian Mission one, Northern Methodist one (arriving in September) and Northern Baptist one (arriving in September). There are also three Chinese professors who have received training in agriculture in America.

200 HUNGHUTZE TERRORISE 4000 WOOD CHOPPERS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, July 26.—Writing at Harbin on July 14, the Chinese official observer says:

At Kavalsky's concession at Yablona, which is some 39 versts from Imanpo, the Hunghutze of late have shown much activity, though their number is said not to exceed 200.

Unlike most concessions, the saw mills on this property are situated at a point 35 versts away from the main line, and on the branch-line which is more than 50 versts in length. At this point there is quite a settlement with its own electric light station, workshops, roundhouse, etc., some 55 Russians with their families and over 4,000 Chinese living there.

Further to the North, close to where work is now being carried on, lies the Landzho, and it is on the Northern bank of this river that the Hunghutze are camped. To make their raids they cross over the river, quickly returning before they can be attacked by the forest guards, of whom there are 140 stationed at the saw mills.

DEMAND $60,000

The management of this property has received several letters from the bandit chiefs, who first demanded the payment of $60,000.

When this was not forthcoming they burned 1,600 cubic sages of wood at Balazara and then wrote, saying that they now increased the sum to $100,000.

As no attention was paid to this letter, on the night of July 30 they fired another 2,500 cubes of wood and 12,500 poles at Huanhotze, another branch line, and the very next day told the Chinese laborers working at 30 versts at the saw mills, etc., that they must stop work at once, otherwise they would be attacked. The police, being much alarmed by these threats, have since the 13th instant refused to work. Some time ago the wives and families of the Russians living there were brought down to Yablona, where they are now living in boxcars, their husbands remaining at 30 versts in order to look after the property there.

CHALLENGE TROOPS

The bandits have written to the commander of the troops on this property, challenging him to give battle, but in each instance that an armored train has been sent, the Hunghutze have quickly retired into the forests, where the troops are unable to follow seeing that there are no roads and they are likely to be ambushed.

At Lukosho, where Skidelesky has a concession, and where the saw mill is situated at the junction of the branch and main lines, the Hunghutze are also active but do not exceed 100 in number. Here they have their headquarters at the Company's building at versts 55, and so as to prevent any armored train from coming there they have burnt the wooden bridges at versts 51 and 53.

The telephone line which runs through the whole property is still working, and the bandits are continually in communication with the management and the forest guard which on this property is some 170 strong. Here, too, a demand of $100,000 has been made by the Hunghutze.

The above two examples furnish adequate illustration of what is now actually going on on all forest concessions on the Eastern Section of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

LIFE IN DANGER

It will be seen that not only is all work on the concessions impossible, but that life and property are in danger.

According to information received, there are some 150,000 cubic sages of firewood and a similar quantity of logs, poles and sleepers on the concessions waiting to be loaded into cars and taken to points along the main line.

Unless measures are taken immediately, a quantity of this valuable cargo is likely to be destroyed by the Hunghutze, while buildings, bridges and the branch railway tracks are also likely to suffer. The total amount at stake here is the matter cannot be left in abeyance, for all at present is at the mercy of the bandits.

What is first necessary is to send an adequate number of troops along the branch lines of the different properties for the protection of the cut timber until it can be removed to some safe spot.

Facilities should at once be given to the timber owners so that they may be able to remove quickly all this wood, and proper protection should be given the laborers required for this work.

As the number of soldiers required would be considerable, it is unlikely that a proper offensive can be made against the Hung-huts this season, seeing that they are so scattered and hard to get at.

PLAN WINTER WAR

As the cold weather comes on the bandits gradually disperse, it being impossible for them to camp in the very cold weather in the forests, as they have no houses nor huts to protect them against the severe frosts. Thus during the winter months a plan can be worked out to contend against repetition of the present state of affairs next year.

They only begin to collect again in the early Spring, and if an offensive of a serious character is undertaken then, when the numbers are not so great, it is unlikely that they will give much trouble as the year wears on.

In the opinion of the writer, permission should be granted for each of the concessions to have a certain number of forest guards in its own employ. These men, who would be picked by the management, might be of any nationality, and would be used off the railway line and in the forests to drive away the Hunghutze. These men, being continually on the spot, would soon be able to locate the haunts of the bandits and get to know the country. Such guards in the way and service of private individuals and corporations exist in other countries where properties are situated in the wilds and cannot conveniently be protected by Government troops in this case.

WANT LIAISON OFFICER
The arms and ammunition required by these forest guards could be hired or supplied by Chinese authorities, who would only fix the number of guards permissible on each concession but would also have an officer attached to each property to follow all that was happening and to act as an intermediary when the properties required assistance from the Chinese troops.

These forest guards would only be allowed to carry arms when on duty, and would not be permitted along the railway line when armed. There should be apprehension on the part of the Chinese authorities that such a body of armed men could become a public menace, or that the sovereignty of China could be infringed upon, since the actual number of armed men on each property would not in most cases exceed 100, and the properties are situated at some distance from each other.

The fact must be borne in mind that the management only wants the force provided to protect its property and therefore will see that their guards strictly attend to their duty, which will in itself not be very light.

Chain Drugstore Heed In Trusteeship Net

(Reuter's Service)

New York, July 28.—It is announced that the personal affairs of Mr. Louis Liggett, head of the United Drug Company and Liggett's International, have been placed in the hands of trustees owing to the decline in the market price of the company's common stock, and for the purpose of conserving Liggett's assets and protecting creditors.

Mr. Liggett has made a statement, emphasizing that the situation is merely personal and in no way affects the financial soundness of the company or the international or other respective subsidiary concerns.

Facilities should at once be given to the timber owners so that they may be able to remove quickly all this wood, and proper protection should be given the laborers required for this work.

As the number of soldiers required would be considerable, it is unlikely that a proper offensive can be made against the Hung-

Tokio, July 28.—The Jiji and Kokumin give prominence to the mission to Siberia of Mr. Matsushima, who is reported to recommend a compromise between the Vladivostok and Chita Governments, and negotiations with GEMA for the evacuation of the Japanese troops.

Pending these negotiations, the papers mentioned believe that the exchange of divisions is likely to be postponed. If an agreement is reached with Chita, it is thought to be unnecessary to despatch the Eighth Division.

A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges. Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary. Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty. 1 Imperial Gallon covers about 130 square yards one coat. Shanghai & Hongkong

Shanghai Nine Billed To Meet Wilmington Team This Afternoon

GAME SET FOR 4

Management To Wait For Sun To Sink 'Ere Battle Starts

WITH five of his 300 hitters, and three other most valuable players either in the sick bay or out of town over the week end Capt. Wilhoit of the Shanghai Baseball Club is issuing a call for every baseball player in the city to turn out at the ball park today and tomorrow at 3 o'clock, for participation in the game, against the strong nine of the gunboat Wilmington.

The said games commence at 4 when the fiercest heat of the day has passed and the cool of the early evening will make it tolerable or even comfortable for both player and fan. The men are due for an hour workout before each game.

The crippled men are: Hopkins, wrenched knee, under treatment for the past two weeks, but improving slowly. Hopkins would have been in first class playing condition now had he not been so anxious to get back into last Saturday's game, and suffered a further injury to his invalid member. The club is missing Hopkins clean fielding and heavy left handed hitting.

Roeser, who cracked his arm a month ago, when he was hit by a pitched ball, is yet favoring his broken wing, and in addition has a sprained ankle. His 481 per cent wallowing also will be missed today. Bristow has not yet recovered from a cracked shoulder blade; Hoag is using a cane when he walks; Dennison and Crow are halfway in the hospital with cases of too much weather, and the like; Bills and Matoney, two of the best men on the team are out of town over Sunday.

Dennison, it was said yesterday, would work a few innings today, just to keep his wing in shape, and to help his general condition along. Terry or Arit, or both will finish out the game for him. Tomorrow, Merrill will probably start for Shanghai, with Terry and Arit again coming to the rescue.

Manager Ross yesterday emphasized that all Shanghai baseball players must report for practice beginning with today's game. An intensive period of training will be begun today to continue until the arrival of the Ninth Cavalry team, August 9 for the series of six games with Shanghai. The Cavalry nine will suggest the best effort of Shanghai, and Shanghai must begin right now to extend its every effort toward the winning of the series.

The Wilmington nine was out yesterday afternoon in a practice session with a pick up team from the Shipping Board boat, the Eastern Importer. The Gunboat men won by a big score. Fricks and Lane, the two navy pitchers who worked so effectively against Shanghai last week each twirled a few innings, and the whole team had a nice workout.

Downey Loses On Foul; Proclaimed As New Champion

Ohio State Boxing Commission And Newspapermen Reverse Referee's Decision

(Reuter's Service) Cleveland, Ohio, July 28.—The State Boxing Commission and local sporting writers have named Bryan Downey as the world's middleweight champion, asserting that in the twelve-round contest here last night he knocked out the holder, Johnny Wilson, in the seventh round. The referee, Mr. Gardner, of Boston—Wilson's home town—gave Wilson the decision on a foul.

BOWLERS BUSY OVER WEEK-END THREE GAMES ON

Juniors Booked To Beat Recs; Yangtzepoo Meets S.L.B.C. This Afternoon, Too

OPEN TOURNEY GREAT

Manwaring And Wallace Show Well Against Smith And Bloom

BY "THE SHOT"

THREE inter club matches are down for decision this week end, and should the weather hold up we should see some well contested games. The Juniors visit their old rivals "The Recs" this afternoon and looking over the teams I don't see why the visitors should not win. The match is bound to be very close as on the former occasion when these teams met, a matter of two points only separated them at the finish, the honours going to the Recs.

Yangtzepoo will be on view at the lawn bowls greens and there is no reason why they should not put up a stiff fight, but I rather fancy the home club as they seem to be showing something of their own class form lately. The club should also manage to win on Sunday, when they play the blue and whites.

There has been some great games in the open championship during the past week. Quite the best performance, to my mind, is the victory of Guy Manwaring and Sam Wallace over the Bloom and Smith combination at Wayside Park.

It was a game in which all four players were at their best, but Guy's penchant for picking an opponent's counter out was the deciding factor in a good game. It is good to see these two names standing out in the championships, as just a couple of decades ago they were indulging in a little pioneer work in the interest of this pastime.

Shaw and Phillips put it all over the Juniors pair, Smith and Barnes, despite some excellent bowling by the "Jolly old major."

But what can one make of the George Dunlop pair who came to the Recs ground to play Ackerman and Wheeler? Now I know the latter pair are playing jolly good bowls this season, and when they led 3-1 at the fourth end it looked as though they were out for blood. The end of the story is that Dunlop and his partner won by 40 to 6. This result, on the top of his late rink successes, stamp the cheery little Scotsman as 22 carat in the bowling world of Shanghai.

In the singles Guy Manwaring who was runner up last year lost to Bob Aitkenhead after a good game, while C.M. Bain succumbed to Charlie Richards at Wayside. This was quite a good match and at the 20th end the popular C.M.B. was lying 4 shots with Charlie having one wood to go. The score at this point was 19-15 in favor of the man Gra Partick. Charlie drew the back with his last wood and so won the game.

Dunlop had an easy victory over Jim Hayward at Longkew Park and I understand he is constantly humming a popular air called "All greens are alike to me."

The result of the draw for the semi-final in the rank championship, is that Rossie Young and Bob Aitkenhead meet on the Recs while Richards and Bain will fight out the issue on the Juniors green.

Both great games—I should like to see them. Although their performance last round was none so convincing the Juniors have any amount of confidence and are out to bring the spoils Hongkew way. One thing in their favor is the fact that Jimmy Marshgreen has not been in a losing rink this year and seems confident that he is going to keep it up.

The other game looks like being won by the holders but Charlie Richards is in tip top form just now and if it is close scoring I am going to pick him to win.

The following are teams for today's matches:—

CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES

In the fourth round of the singles championship the following games have to be played: G. Dunlop vs. A. Braid. R. C. Aitkenhead vs. C. Amner. J. Buckley vs. C. Richards. J. E. Wheeler vs. T. Veitch. In the pairs: R. C. Aitkenhead and A. Macgregor vs. A. A. Malcolm and W. Blissett. Guy Manwaring and S. M. Wallace vs. A. W. McCallum and T. Harborne. C. B. Stormes and J. Burnside vs. J. Shaw and R. P. Phillips. In the match G. Ackerman and J. E. Wheeler vs. R. Simmon and G. Dunlop the latter won by a good margin and are in the semi-final.

In the rinks, at a meeting of the Committee held yesterday, it was decided that the Semi-final:

In a pitchers' battle marked by but few safe hits, and clean support, the Osaka Diamond baseball team defeated the 15th Infantry on Tuesday, in the first game in which they have met in the baseball tournament now being played in the North. The score was 2-1.

Bame started for the Infantry but weakened after the sixth and Hutchinson finished for him. Utsumi, who worked here in one of the Olympic games, twirled for the Japanese.

No scoring occurred until the seventh, when Ono walked, stole, and scored on Ikawa's single. Ikawa taking second on the throw-in. Yasui's single brought Ikawa in for the second run. London Bars Fraudulent Dempsey-Carpentier Film

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 28.—The Dempsey-Carpentier fight has had an interesting sequel in the Chancery Court, London, which today granted the Western Import Company a perpetual injunction, restraining the exhibition of a film in breach of their copyright.

It was explained that the defendants were the innocent victims of a fraud, and had done everything to minimise the damage to the plaintiffs through the exhibition of a fraudulent film.

How the latter was secured was narrated by the perpetrator to an interviewer. It appears that the narrator, a young New Yorker, engaged a camera operator, and climbed a water-tower outside the Stadium on the eve of the fight. He drilled a hole in the iron tank at the top of the tower, letting out the water, and another hole, in which a telescope lens was fixed.

At the termination of the fight the New Yorker lifted the lid of the tank and found that the operator, who had been fourteen hours inside, had fainted, but had secured the picture with the exception of the last round.

A copy of this New Yorker obtained by bribing the operator at a private show of the official film. He then sailed on a fast boat to London, where he sold the prints, as well as throughout the Continent.

The films were actually being exhibited in London when the plaintiffs' manager arrived with the official pictures.

Municipal Police Net Stars Lose To S.R.C. In Friendly Games

The Columbia Country Club, the Portuguese Sporting Association and the Cercle Sportif Francals won in the first day's play of the Shanghai City Tennis League of the Lawn Tennis Association, by defeating the teams representing respectively the Shanghai Recreation Club, the Country Club and the Shanghai Cricket Club.

The win of Portuguese Sporting Association over the Country Club was clean and decisive. Of the five matches the Portuguese won four. Each of the other two victorious clubs won by totals of 3 matches to 2.

Canavaro and E. Letao in the first match between the Portuguese and Country Club men played exceedingly fine tennis. Canavaro especially won much applause by this play. The second match was not so easily won, three sets being required to score the win. The third match, the only one lost, was comparatively easy for Pearson and Saunders. Three sets again featured the fourth match, while the fifth was decided in two, 6-4 and 8-6.

The Cercle Sportif Francals started the afternoon against the Cricket Club by an easy win against Barrett and Wodehouse, 6-2 and 6-0. The second and third matches required three sets for the wins, and the last two matches were lost. The playing of Mancell-Smith and Knowles in the first match against Barrett and Wodehouse was considered exceptionally strong.

The Columbian players, with Pot and Gullik in the first match got a good start with their quick win over Wade and Ollerdesen. The second and third matches, lost to W. and G. Manley and Haws and Wilson, left the issue in doubt for the C. C. C. pairs, but the work of Dawson and Dodge and Bogle and Hale in the concluding matches brought out the win for the day.

LOUVAIN LIBRARY CORNERSTONE IS LAID BY BUTLER

(Reuter's Service)
Louvain, July 28.—The first stone of the new University library replacing the one which was burned by the Germans in 1914, was laid today by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University in the presence of the King and Queen of the Belgians and a distinguished gathering.
Dr. Murray Butler is the chairman of the American Committee which is erecting the building. Three English representatives were present, including the Librarian of the Rylands library at Manchester, which originally promoted the reconstruction scheme, and has sent 38,000 books to Louvain.

China Politics And Insurance Policies Both Sadly Mixed

The government is not the only institution having trouble these days. Consider the insurance company.
Yesterday the Pook On Company prosecuted Wang Meng-kwang, formerly its sub-agent in Ningpo. During last year, according to testimony put before the Mixed Court, Wang forwarded an application for a policy for a man named Zung, living in a village near Ningpo. Zung was examined and the application was turned down. Later Wang forwarded another application. It was forwarded on behalf of the same man but another name was used. When the examining doctor arrived in Ningpo a man was brought before him for examination and was passed for the policy. Recently the company were notified that the man had died. The sub-agent meanwhile had resigned and an agent was sent to the village to investigate. He found that no one by the name given in the record had died there during the last three years.
The interest of the company in the case became lively. As a result it was discovered that the man examined for the policy was not the man to whom it was issued. The substitute was located and said he had acted in the matter purely out of friendship for Wang. He didn't think it mattered particularly.
Wang was still more naive about it. The right man had been out of town, he said, when the doctor arrived and the witness thought that he would save the company trouble by sending another man to take the examination.
"I never expected that the policyholder would die," protested Wang.
On account of the defendant's age, 65, the court was inclined to be lenient and ordered that he pay a fine of $100 or go to jail for one month.

Pull Up Poppy And End Smuggling Of Drugs Is Demand

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, July 27.—The British Minister, Sir Bellby Alston, has communicated with the Foreign Office regarding cultivation of the poppy in Shensi, Jehol, Sinkiang, Kiangsu, Anhwei, Fukien and several other provinces. He points out that the Government should strictly prohibit the planting of poppies and the smuggling of drugs which are in violation of treaty provisions.
The Minister of the Interior has sent investigators to the various provinces to co-operate with the provincial authorities for the eradication of the evil, and has forwarded communications to those provinces mentioned by Sir Bellby Alston.

Summer Session For Teachers Is Held At Hangchow College

(China Press Correspondence)
Hangchow, July 27.—The annual summer institute for day school teachers of mission schools which has been in session at Hangchow Christian College for the past two weeks, closed today. Nearly one hundred teachers were present, the interest shown and the regular attendance at all classes were gratifying.
Unusual interest was manifested in the study of the National Language, or Kok Nyul. During part of the session three periods a day were set apart for instruction and drill in this language that is to unify all China and the teachers were often sought privately by those who were eager to get additional practice.
The need for some such language was stressed in an illustration on closing night when a short speech was made by some of the different teachers, the substance of the talks being identical, but the pronunciation of each in his local dialect varying so much from the others that it seemed as though the great Six Harmonies Pagoda nearby might be a modern Tower of Babel.

Another popular course was in Chinese boxing, classes for both men and women being trained by teachers of the Chin Woo Athletic Association of Shanghai.
Many of the courses given were by expert teachers who received their training in Government educational circles. On one afternoon about forty pupils from the lower primary school at Wayland Academy came out to the college and showed what a school program for parents and friends can be made. It was an interesting performance, with some thirty numbers that followed each other without a moment's waste time. Perhaps the most striking feature was the writing of a pair of scrolls for the chairman of the institute, done in his presence before the audience by one of these primary pupils.
Another novel feature was the course in Bible study, which presented sample sheets that enable children to express Bible stories in a series of graphic pencil sketches, and also to apply the teachings of the lesson in another series of little sketches of everyday Chinese life.

The institute was under the direction of Rev. J. M. Espey of Leora Institute, Shanghai, and Prof. Elam J. Anderson of Shanghai Baptist College, the Chinese associates being Mr. Tsung Thichung and Mr. D. Y. Loh, M.A.

STILL IS MISSING

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, July 27.—Mr. Wang Chi-tseng, Chinese Minister in Cuba, replying to the Watchdog's instructions for him to visit Cuba and clear up the matter of Mr. Chen's disappearance, says that he is too busily engaged in revising the treaty with Mexico to be able to leave Mexico at present.
Mr. Wang adds that he proposes to send Mr. Tao Lu-chien, Secretary of Legation, to Peking to report to the Government regarding the Mexican treaty. Not satisfied with this report the Watchdog has instructed Mr. Wang to send Mr. Tao to Havana if he cannot go himself.

REPORT ON RUSSIANS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, July 27.—As the question of relief to Russians in foreign countries will be discussed at the forthcoming session of the League of Nations Dr. Wellington Koo has asked the Central Government to send him a report on the condition of Russians in China.
Dr. Koo suggests the appointment of Mr. Chow Wei as Chinese delegate to international communications at the next meeting of the league. Mr. Chow Wei represented China at the last conference on international communications, but has since returned to China.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.
Don't Poison Baby.

Forty years ago almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which is poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrup," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children unless you or your physician know of what it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria.
Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have frequently prescribed Castoria for common ailments of children with good results."
W. A. CHANDALL, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.
"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine and, aside from my own family experience, I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."
Wm. J. McCANN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.
"I object to what are called patent medicines, where the maker alone knows what stuff is put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use in proper cases. I judge it to be a very useful, as well as harmless family medicine."
H. B. ELLIS, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Caught! A Pyromaniac

How Science Explains the Peculiar Mental Disease That Made a 19-Year-Old Pennsylvania Boy Burn Down Churches, Schools, Farm Houses and Barns and Enjoy Their Destruction Just Like Nero When He Set Fire to Ancient Rome

WHEN officers of the Pennsylvania State Constabulary got their hands on nineteen-year-old Albert Smith, of Fairhope, Pa., and locked him up in the jail at Fayette City, they found they had the boy who had been starting many of the mysterious fires which had burned up some thirty-five churches, school houses, farm houses and barns in Fayette County, Pa. The fires had caused a loss of $500,000.

Albert Smith is not a thief. He is the son of an extremely well-to-do real estate dealer. The boy never profited in any way from any of the thirteen blazes which he has admitted he started.

The following admissions by Smith are curious revelations of the workings of his diseased mind, and further on in this page is given the scientific analysis of his extraordinary malady.

"It was this way," Smith began his confession, according to the Fayette City police. "I guess I'm insane. I get such terrible pains in my head, both in the back and front, and I just don't know why I set so many places on fire. Something just seemed to tell me that I should do it, and I did."

"The Redstone Methodist Episcopal Church was different. It looked so deserted that I figured I would put it out of its misery. So I lifted a small tombstone from the burial ground which adjoins the church, crashed it through a window, tore the leaves out of several Bibles and hymn books, and with a little oil which I had I soon had a fire started by the pulpit."

"I remember setting fire to the South Brownsville school, the Dean Herskovitz residence in West Brownsville, the West Brownsville garage, the Brownsville Christ's Episcopal Church in High street, the Hellman farm, the James Shearer farmhouse, the James Clark farm, the Redstone Church, the Andrew Brown farm, a lumber yard at Belle Vernon, one or two other places. And I didn't do it for spite because I know most of the men who owned the farms and I really liked them."

"I thought that the best Christmas I could have would come through a lot of fires which I had been told by something in my head to set, and gee, didn't they burn! And I set fire to the Arnold schoolhouse, too."

"My first fire was the dancing pavilion near our home. Father had told me that it was a source of trouble and carousing and at one time remarked, 'I wish that damned place would burn down.' That sort of gave me a hint, so that night I got oil from our cellar and matches and sent the pavilion up in flames. I got away with that so easily that I soon tried and tried again, each time with additional success. If there were guards around I never saw any, and no one ever took a shot at me. I never waited to see what damage was done after I applied the match at the different places, but had no spite at churches or school, but suppose that the devil made me do it."

"I started out early on the afternoon of December 24 and walked to Brownsville. On my way there I saw the Braznell schoolhouse and thought that I would send it up in smoke, so I kindled a fire in one corner after gaining entrance by forcing the door. I continued on my way and soon reached the Redstone Episcopal Church."

"I hurried to South Brownsville after that, as I didn't want to slight that section of the county as it was right in my district. I forced open one of the windows in the basement of the school, went to the top floor and right against the airshaft I piled torn maps, book leaves and other paper into a paper box and applied a match. I saw several persons outside and thought for a little while that I had been caught, but in the excitement I got away and went to Christ's Episcopal Church."

"I gained an easy entrance there, and then for a little while I couldn't find anything with which to start the fire. I came across a few robes—I guess they were the choir's—so I piled them in the middle of the church floor and applied a match. I thought it was all off with that church, but I guess the pastor came there for a midnight service and found the fire in time to put it out."

"The Dean Herskovitz residence was easy, as every one in West Brownsville seemed to be at the fire I had started in the South Brownsville School."

"With five fires started I thought I had done a pretty good day's work, so I turned home. On my way I noticed the nice big brick house of Harvey Elliott and quickly applied oil and a match from the outside, getting away before anyone detected me. The Clark barn was my last attempt, but in the meantime I had tried to fire the Hellman and Shearer farm houses, all there in a nice, big bunch."

"From the Clark barn I went across the field to the road, where I was picked up by a man whom I knew very well."

"A State cop, who suspicious every one, came along and arrested me. I realized that it was all up, and when they said I would be lynched I thought I might just as well own up to the whole thing."

Of course no person in their right senses wants to burn a church because it looks lonesome, or set fire to a school so that it won't feel neglected. Albert Smith had these impulses because he is suffering from a mental disease which is well recognized, although not so well understood by medical science.

Albert Smith is what is known as a pyromaniac, a victim of what Dr. Pierre Janet, of Paris, calls a "compulsion neurosis" and which is connected with an atavistic fire-worship inherited from our earliest ancestors and traceable in ancient "funeral pyres," cremations and in the Hindu "suttee."

Many facts are known about the outward manifestations of the mania, but the underlying causes in the mind are still more or less of a puzzle. It is one of a long list of mental diseases that cannot be diagnosed through any physical symptoms.

The doctor can see that a man has a cold or a cough or scarlet fever, but he cannot see that he has pyromania until the victim acts.

The basic facts are that there is a mental condition in which a man derives the most intense pleasure from just starting a fire and watching it burn, and that the impulse to do this is at times utterly irresistible. It overcomes all the restraints and inhibitions created by education, morality, fear and knowledge of the punishment that many follow.

Dr. Pierre Janet, one of the most noted French neurologists, calls it an obsession occurring without clouding of consciousness or disorder of judgment in a person who is in a psychopathic and thus a borderland state.

Why the Pyromaniac "Has to" Start Fires.

Professor Janet classifies pyromania among what he calls "compulsion neuroses," and these are closely allied to the fear neuroses, the anxiety hysterics and the neurasthenias.

"The characteristics of the compulsion neuroses," says the scientist, "are certain tendencies to act or to think in certain ways. The patient is forced apparently against his will and without reason to think certain ideas or certain thoughts or to do certain things. The compulsion increases until it is yielded to, then a period of calm follows, which may be of variable length, until, so to speak, the energy has again accumulated, when the compulsion again manifests itself and must again be yielded to."

"These obsessions produce a tremendous amount of mental unrest if they are not yielded to, and a sense of relief is experienced when they are yielded to, oftentimes, however, with a following sense of remorse for having yielded."

On the other hand, there is the theory that certain persons have an excessive charge of nervous energy which must find outlet in some exciting action, just as others suffer from a deficiency of nervous energy. Those who have the excess of nervous energy are called "hyperasthenics." If they are deprived of a useful outlet for their energy it will take the form of such acts as burning and destruction.

Dr. Maurice de Fleury, of the French Academy, explaining this theory, says:

"The hyperasthenic is always proud and masterful, courageous, bellicose and fierce; pitiless because he has no need of pity, and constantly on the brink of exasperation. Should the conditions of his daily life not consume his excess of vitality, his need of expending his superabundant energy, the suppressed steam of his human machine and his turbulent strength strive to find an outlet and to strike. In time of war such men prove themselves heroes and brave death to win the admiration of the world."

"Such men have won fame by soothing their nerves with a lawful massacre."

President G. Stanley Hall, of Clark University, writes in his remarkable "Study of Fears":

"There are traces in the fear of fire of a psychosis born of the companionship of primitive man and fire, so that even now just to gaze idly at fire starts dreamy reveries, veined through which are traces of very primeval yet earnest thinking."

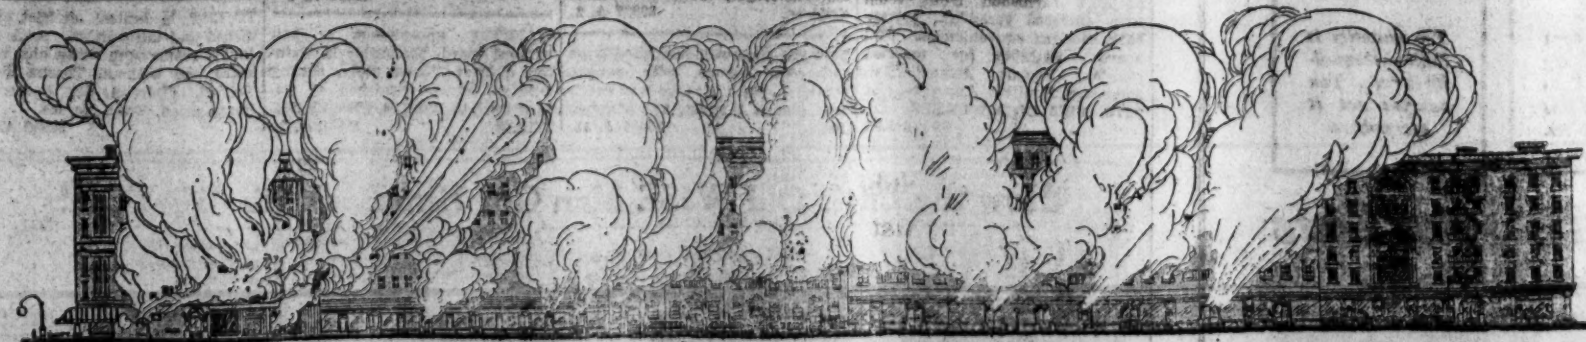

"Here we have suggestions of fossil forms of neural twigs, inherited terrors, thrills and shudders, which we may regard as survivals from a state of psychic life so low and now so far transcended that the adult consciousness, while it may repress, cannot uproot them."

Two historic outbreaks of pyromania occurred when Nero set fire to Rome and when Alexander the Great assisted the courtesan Thais to set fire to the famous library at Persepolis, which had just fallen into his possession. Alexander asked the courtesan what was the greatest pleasure he could offer her, and she promptly specified the burning of the library. This seems to be clearly a case of pyromania on the part of Thais.

From earliest time fire was closely associated with all religious and many solemn ceremonies. Jehovah spoke to Moses from a burning bush. Great kings after death were burnt on funeral pyres, sometimes with their wives, their slaves and their treasures. There are interesting historical records of the funeral pyres of Sardanapalus and other famous monarchs of early periods. In these ceremonies there was a common belief that the spirit of the dead ascended to heaven, although the appeal to the fire-worshipping instinct of the multitude was also an element in them.

Numerous cases of pyromania are brought continually to the attention of doctors at the present day. A New York doctor recently reported the case of a young woman who said that she obtained by setting fire to things the consolation she could not find in love.

The Burning of Persepolis—One of the Most Notable Ancient Authentic Cases of Pyromania Was That of the Courtesan Thais, Who Accompanied Alexander the Great During His Conquest of Persia. History Tells How She Set in Flames the Wonderful Library of Persepolis to Gratify Her Craving for Destruction by Fire, an Act of Insane Vandalism Which the French Artist, Rochegrosse Pictures in This Painting.

W. L. A. B. BURDETT-COUTTS

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 28.—The death is announced of Mr. W. L. A. B. Burdett-Coutts, M. P. for Westminster since 1885. The deceased prominently identified himself with the philanthropic work of his wife, the late Baroness Burdett-Coutts, while his investigation into the treatment of sick and wounded in the South African War led to the appointment of a Royal Commission of Inquiry and a complete reform of the Royal Army Medical Service.

Sky Still Limit But No Longer Roof Of N. Y. Curb Brokers

(Reuter's Service)

New York (by mail).—After several decades of nomadic existence along the main highway of the financial district, the "out side market," corporately known as the New York Curb Association, has moved into its own spacious quarters on the western fringe of Wall Street.

For the first time in its long and picturesque history "the curb," to quote one of its chief officials, "will cease to have the sky as its roof and will find shelter within its own four walls."

The new building of the New York Curb Market, now virtually completed at a cost of about $2,350,000 including the ground, is an impressive structure located on Trinity Place, directly back of the famous Trinity graveyard, and extending westward to Greenwich Street.

Railway Mortars Will Protect Pearl Harbor

(Reuter's Service)

Honolulu (by mail).—Two important announcements of further plans for the defence of Oahu, the island on which Honolulu is situated, were made recently by army headquarters here. One calls for the formation of a railway artillery battalion, and the other contemplates the establishment of a new fort to command the entrance to Pearl Harbor, the navy's great base six miles from this city.

Twelve-inch mortars will be used by the railway battalion, and the tracks of the Oahu Railway will be utilised to transport them. To strategic points on the island not touched by the railway at present spur tracks will be laid, so that in case of emergency, heavy guns may be rushed to any section of the coast-line as fast as locomotives can haul them. The railway mortars have a range of 15,000 yards.

Kaehi Point, across the entrance to Pearl Harbor from Port Kamehameha, will be used as the site of the new fort.

Sungala Estate Meeting

The sixth annual general meeting of the Sungala Rubber Estate, Ltd.,

was held yesterday afternoon at the offices of the secretaries and general managers, 40 Kiangse Road. Mr.

Cecil Holliday occupied the chair, supported by Dr. Chadwick T. Kew and Mr. Chang Nieh-yun, directors;

Mr. R. C. Phillips, secretary, and shareholders representing 30,674 shares.

The notice convening the meeting and the auditors' report having been read, the chairman said:

"Gentlemen: The report and accounts for the year ending March 31, 1921 having been in your hands for some days now I will, with your permission, follow the usual custom at this port and take them as read."

"Following precedent your directors have put into the printed report all they can find to say about the working of the estate during last year and about the general situation.

"As regards this latter, I am sorry to say there is as yet no relief, the selling price of rubber is still much below what it can be produced at and in consequence there is no tapping going on and all expenditure has been reduced to its lowest possible level compatible with keeping the estate in a proper condition: your directors have foregone their fees and the secretaries and general managers reduced their remuneration by 40 percent and that is all there is to be done for the present.

"Before putting the first resolution if there is any point any shareholder would like elucidated I shall be glad to do what I can in that direction."

The following resolutions were then passed:

That the report and accounts as published be accepted and passed.

Proposed by Dr. C. T. Kew.

That Dr. C. T. Kew, the retiring director, be re-elected a director of the company.—Proposed by Mr. Y.

K. Zea Shih-yang, seconded by Mr.

Chin Tse-foong.

That Messrs. Mortimer, Reid

and Slee be re-appointed auditors to the company at a remuneration of Tls. 150.—Proposed by Dr. C. T.

Kew, seconded by Mr. Chang Nieh-yun.

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and

Brand write as follows in their exchange circular for week ending

July 27:

Exchange.—The London price of silver at 38 1/2 shows a rise of 1 1/4 d. during the week. Our rate for T.T. on London followed with a rise of 1/4 d. to 3s. 8d., but remained at this rate as advices from London quote the market uncertain. Locally the demand for cash has continued and premia at 2d. over official quotations have been offered. Today our exchange market is easier and at the close showed a weak tendency.

This is probably in view of the absence of adequate cover in the form of Export paper.

Unless there is an improvement in this respect it does not appear likely that our rates can be maintained on the present comparatively high levels for a period longer than the tightness of money in certain quarters for certain early deliveries continues, as a good demand for Gold T.T. in connection with Imports is reported.

With regard to local stocks of silver, it is difficult to arrive at an exact figure, but from inquiries made we gather that:

Our stocks of Silver are reported as follows:

Sycee and Bar Silver Tls.

30,470,000, an increase of Tls.

1,490,000.

Chinese and Mexican Dollars

$27,250,000, an increase of $1,220,000.

Estimated value in Taels Tls.

50,090,000 as against Tls. 51,

250,000 held at this time last year.

Rubber Prices

pany have received the following

England And Russia

It will be remembered that when the Anglo-Russian Agreement was signed there was some anxiety as to whether it would become actually operative. The difficulty in the way was a legal one, turning upon the question whether the property in England that was formerly owned by the Imperial Russian Government was now the property of the Soviet Government or not. This issue was partly settled in favor of the Soviet Government by a case heard some time ago, but now the position has been made absolutely and finally cleared by a decision of the Chancery Division reported in a Reuters telegram. This decision is to the effect that a holder of Russian bonds issued in 1906 has no claim on the gold deposited in the Bank of England by the former Russian Imperial Government. Apparently the contention of the bond-holder was that the Russian Imperial Government being defunct, he had a claim on its estate, which included a deposit of gold in the Bank of England. The decision of the court is that though the Russian Imperial Government is defunct, it has a legal successor in the Soviet Government in Moscow. There must have been some complications in the issue of which the telegrams have not informed us, for the decision reached is entirely in consonance with the accustomed reading of international law on the subject. As the whole question has been very concisely summed up: "The new Government succeeds to the fiscal rights and is bound to fulfil the fiscal obligations of the former government. It becomes entitled to the public domain and other property of the state, and is bound to pay its debts previously contracted." It is possible the issue was rendered somewhat doubtful by the fact that as yet the Moscow Government is not diplomatically recognized.

The point is quite clear now, however, that the British legal authorities recognize the Soviet Government as the legal successor to the Imperial Government, and that therefore any engagement entered into with that Government is as valid as ever was any engagement entered into with the Imperial Government. This is a most important consideration in opening up trade with Russia; but its importance does not end there. Obviously the next step to take is to acknowledge in the diplomatic sphere what is now recognized as plain fact in the legal realm. The Anglo-Russian Trade Agreement, it will be remembered, made certain provisions as to the exchange of commercial and semi-consular agents pending the conclusion of a political treaty between the two. A political treaty was thus clearly within the field of vision of the British authorities when the Trade Agreement was made. There would seem to be nothing to prevent the consummation of such a treaty now.

There is an incidental question arising from all this, incidental indeed but of considerable importance. It is well known that the Moscow authorities have accorded the fullest possible recognition to the Government of the Far Eastern Republic. The process by which the Far Eastern Republic has come into being has involved no breach of continuity greater than that which brought the Soviet Government at Moscow into being. The relations between the Far Eastern Republic and Soviet Russia are very much the same as those between Great Britain and her overseas dominions. To all intents and purposes the British self-governing dominions are internationally recognized states.

The Far Eastern Republic, then, is entitled to the same character and degree of recognition that Soviet Russia enjoys; and there is no reason why it should not enjoy the development of that recognition pari passu with its development in the case of Soviet Russia—no reason, that is to say, except that certain alien elements are trying to sow discord in the Republic with a view to discrediting it in the eyes of the world.

FASHION NOTES

Woman is like fragile flower in hot house, which is protected from curious eyes by much glass.

Hot house flower is overdressed compared with fashionable slipper. Latest dope from clothes touts in Paris indicates that skirts are more unpopular than ever.

The expensive sex are now wearing skirts that resemble window shades rolled up.

Old time long skirts used to wrinkle when lady sat down. There is nothing to wrinkle now.

Latest skirt from Paris consists of waist band trimmed with buckle.

Famous Americanette now in Paris was pipped off at races in Peiret gown. She was just barely fashionable. Modern women is lazy. Our grandmothers were different. They were all bustle.

Looks like we're going back to days of ancient ancestors who never wore anything that wouldn't wash off.

Mother used to ask clerk to show her latest epidemic in fashions. Clerk would open show case. Now, daughter asks to look at latest stuff. Clerk opens window.

No material to alter now. Nothing to fit. Remember when tailor used to tell sister that skirt fitted like paper on wall? Now there is no paper on wall.

Who remembers oldtimer who couldn't wear evening gowns because her elbows were red? Now, the same bird rouses her dorsal, cervical and lumbar vertebrae so they will match her kneecaps.

SUN KISSED

Nature is kind to man. Gives him health, celluloid collars, wealth, alarm clocks. Also gives him more bones in his head than in feet. Gives him healthy body to start life with. Body is protected by skin. Skin is protected by brain alone.

When brain weakens, we rattle forth to beach, hire woolless bathing Tuxedo. Step out into gentle sun for slow simmer. Beautiful rays bounce off epidermis. Everything pretty as May pole dance. Lay down on loose sand for sleep. Wake up with nose feeling like business end of hornet.

Shoulders are pinker than baby ribbons. Knees are boiling over. Feel like you have somebody else's skin on. It doesn't fit. Tight across neck.

Around twilight, when snakes die and bootleggers come to life, you get advance shipment of chills plus fevers. Chills run up your back like window shade. Meets fever coming down. War of chills and fevers with you as battle ground.

You spend night adding up blisters on your legs. Shoulders look like bunch of toy balloons. Arms look like cat meat. Can't lay down because blisters insist on standing up.

Nothing to do with sun sizzled skin except coddle it along. First put on good hot mustard plaster. Add pepper and salt. Sandpaper vigorously. Rub with rough, emery paper towel. Take seat on mezzanine floor of hot stove.

Nice thing about sunburned back and face is it makes you look healthier than hose in oat time. Friends all slap you on back. Congratulate you. In about week your sun kissed skin starts to fold up like accordion. Then dries up like Texas river. Falls off like paper hat in gale. You're cured.

After that you do all your bathing at night time.

CHAIRS IN THE PUBLIC GARDEN

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: Under such trying weather conditions one can hardly breathe freely after a day of strenuous work in the office and a poor devil like myself has no other alternative than to go to the Public Garden for fresh air.

Whilst getting there the desired relief, on the other hand, my pocket gets also relieved of a 10 cent piece for the hire of a chair simply on account of the insufficient number of chairs and other seats provided for the public by the Council.

You are fully aware that much has already been said in the local press about the high cost of living with no apparent results; and judging by the profiteering methods employed by the store keepers and other dealers in commodities and the last but not the least by our landlords, in addition to which, one is compelled to spend an extra sum of money, say $20 per mensem if he wishes to go to the Public Garden for an airing and enjoy some music which is, let me say it frankly, sometimes delightful to the ears and at other times so bad that the heat fills the atmosphere to such an extent that one feels as if the thermometer reads 105°.

But let us hammer on the main subject of this letter and maskee the music. Why should one spend so much money out of his small salary if he wished to go to the garden and get a chair?!!!

A family of four for instance having to hire 4 chairs daily will have to pay $12 per mensem. The use of the tram or ricksha for 4 ought to cost another $12 but let us call it $20, in all as sometimes one can, in spite of the heat, walk to the garden and other times, by a fluke, get one or two public chairs which are free of all kinds of charges excepting the laundryman's, of course for the use of some of these free seats means that one's dress must be sent the very next day to the washerman to have the mud and other dirt washed out not to speak of the risk of the dress being ripped open by an old and sharp nail of a clean but broken chair.

However nobody can deny that the public seats provided by the Council are not sufficient, a glance at any afternoon or night concert will reveal the fact that what is really lacking towards the improvement of our garden is more seating accommodation and it is sincerely to be hoped that if nothing can be done to better the comfort and pocket of the public during this hot season, it is expected that everything in this direction will be done for the next.

I know of no Model Settlement or city in other parts of the globe that rents chairs in the Public Gardens for 10 cents a piece, and yet why should it be 10 cent and not 5 dongpohs?!!! I don't know who is running this business but the check for the chair is printed S.M.C.

The object of this letter is not to censure the doings of our city fathers but merely to bring the subject to their knowledge for fear that they know very little about it. Only recently I witnessed a one round bout, with honors even, between two foreigners caused by a dispute concerning a partly broken chair. Had there been a sufficient supply of public chairs perhaps that bout would not have taken place and were it not for dozens of referees interfering and shouting at the top of their voices (female referees were also included) it would have continued for many more rounds and this state of affairs takes place in a Public Garden of a model settlement on account of shortage of seats!!!!

Am I crying in the desert?!!! Will any responsible party take notice of what I am writing and have the matter remedied by turning over for the use of the public the 10 cent chairs, free of charge or is it not yet time? Thanking you for the publication and enclosing my card, I am, etc.,

POOR JIM.

The editor of a paper stated recently that of all journalistic jobs, the writer of the personal column had the most delicate. He had to interest the public, satisfy the chief, avoid hurting susceptible feelings, escape the law of libel and tell the truth. There was one journalist who nearly turned his editor's hair white by writing of a man he had interviewed:

"I am afraid that statement is libellous," said the editor, "unless you make the addition"—and he added these six words to the manuscript:

Three Hundred Einstein Essays In Lowest Terms

Einstein's theories of relativity and gravitation. Compiled and Edited and Introductory Matter Supplied by J. Malcolm Bird, New York: Scientific American Publishing Company.

REVIEWED BY AARON WYN

"Einstein's Theories of Relativity and Gravitation" is a collection of the best thought on this subject from among the 309 essays submitted for the $5,000 Eugene Higgins prize contest, conducted by the Scientific American. The essays were limited to 3,000 words. The first half of the book is an introduction to the subject compiled from more than fifty of the better essays, synthesized and supplemented by Mr. Bird, and is intended to prepare the reader to understand better the complete essays which follow. The book reminds one of a number of snapshots taken of the same object—no single one gives a clear picture, but there are so many of them, each from a different angle, that by the time one has seen them all one has a fairly distinct picture. The following is of the nature of a "composite photograph" in outline.

Newton's two laws of motion, explained in terms of Euclidean geometry, have hitherto been thought to be fundamental and absolutely accurate descriptions of physical phenomena. They are (1) "a body in a state of rest or uniform motion in the same straight line will continue so unless acted upon by some external force (law of inertia)," and (2) "every particle in the universe attracts every other particle with a force that is directly proportional to the square of their masses and inversely proportional to the square of their distances apart (law of gravitation)."

In his principles of relativity and gravitation Einstein shows (1) that we have no way of determining absolute space and time; (2) that inertia and gravitation are not, as Newton believed, two independent phenomena, but parts of a more fundamental aspect of nature, and (3) that Euclidean geometry, which has been used for the statement of general physical laws, is not universal in its application.

All investigation of reality presupposes an observer, and the first thing an observer must do is to measure. The basis of all measurement is a rod (yardstick, meter-stick, etc.) and a clock. In locating an object on or above the earth we assume that the earth is at rest as regards that object. If, however, we wish to determine the position or motion of the earth we consider the sun as at rest, and thereby ascertain that the earth has a uniform motion of 18½ miles a second relative to the sun.

But is the sun itself at rest? Astronomers, assuming that distance stars are at rest, have long ago discovered that the sun and its planets have a uniform motion of 400,000,000 miles a year relative to the star Vega. Are we moving toward Vega, or is Vega moving toward us, or are we both moving together, or is Vega moving away from us, while our speed is so great that the distance between Vega and us is shortened about 14 miles each second, or vice versa—in short, what is our absolute motion in the universe, and not our relative motion? We do not know. For, to be able to determine absolute motion there would have to be a body in the universe at absolute rest, and there probably is no such body. The only conclusion we can draw is that "an observer on a uniformly moving system can determine only the relative motion of his system." Which forms one part of Einstein's Special Principle of Relativity.

Now, the greatest speed that man has been able to discover in the universe, and, consequently, the only reliable standard for time (time is fundamentally motion—the motion of the earth, the motion of a clock's pendulum) is that of a ray of light—186,330 miles a second. It was found by scientific experiment as far back as 1887 that, whether the earth is moving toward or away from a ray of light, the velocity of light remains the same. The experiment has been repeated again and again, always verified, and must therefore be taken as an established fact. We have here the rest of Einstein's Special Principle of Relativity: "In a vacuum the velocity of light is constant for all observers, whatever the velocity of their relative motion." What you ask, is the significance of Einstein's special principle? Space and time measure- (Continued on Page 13) the statement of general physical laws is an intricate form of mathematics, formulated by the mathematicians Gauss, Lobachevsky, Minkowski and others. The significant aspects of Einstein's theories for the layman are:

1. Space and time measurements are purely relative.
2. Inertial mass and gravitational mass are the same; in other words, energy and matter are only different manifestations of a more fundamental aspect of nature.

ments of one system by an observer on another system vary as the relative motion of the two systems approach the velocity of light. If, for example, an observer on another system were passing us at nine-tenths the velocity of light, objects on his system, in the direction of relative motion, would appear to us less than one-half the length that they appear to him, and a second on his clocks would seem like two and a half of our seconds. And to a same degree objects on our system, in the direction of relative motion, would appear shortened to him and our clocks too slow.

The reason that measurements on one system in the direction of relative motion appear shortened to an observer on another system is that, no matter how accurate the measuring instruments, some time will elapse in making the measurements, and during that time the system under observation will have advanced. In the case of a system moving at nine-tenths the velocity of light the advance would be one-half of any length measured in the direction of relative motion. Measurements at right angles to the direction of relative motion would naturally be unaffected.

A rough and only one-sided analogy for the apparent difference in time measurements is the case of a man travelling around the earth. If he went at the same speed as the earth's rotation (this would be about 1,000 miles an hour at the equator) the sun would to him remain in the same position; if he started with the sun directly overhead it would always be noon to him. Were he going at one-half the speed of the earth's rotation what would be an hour to us as measured by our clocks or by the sun would be half an hour to him as measured by the sun.

In his Special Principle of Relativity Einstein considers only uniform motion (inertia); in his General Principle of Relativity he takes up the question of accelerated (increasing or decreasing) motion (gravitation). The velocity of a body falling to the earth increases 32 feet each second, and the velocity of a body thrown up from the earth decreases 32 feet each second. And wherever there is matter there is gravitation and accelerated motion.

The velocity of light, although a constant to observers on uniformly moving systems, is not constant to observers in gravitational fields, because it is subject to gravitation. A ray of light coming from a distant star is deflected as it passes our sun; the velocity of the ray of light is increased as it approaches it, just as an object falling to the earth, and decreased as it passes away from it. The deflection of light rays as they pass our sun, one of Einstein's three predictions, was verified by astronomers in 1919.

There is an epoch making conclusion to be drawn from this, which is that inertial mass and gravitational mass are the same. For if a ray of light having only uniform motion (inertia) is subject to gravitation then the mass of matter itself must be affected by its velocity; that is, if the velocity of a body increases or decreases its mass increases or decreases.

This explains the moving forward of the perihelion (point nearest the sun) of Mercury a short distance each year, a fact which Newton's laws failed to account for. Having its greatest speed at this point, as is the case with all planets, Mercury will therefore have its greatest mass here, and this sudden increase in mass will cause it to shoot forward slightly. Einstein's third prediction, that the lines of any element in the solar spectrum will, because of gravitation, be slightly shifted toward the red rays, has not yet been verified.

According to Euclidean geometry the straight line is always the shortest distance between two points. But, the nearest approach to an absolutely straight line in space is a ray of light, and the path of a light wave is not straight in gravitational fields, as we have seen in the case of a light wave passing the sun. The reason for this, according to Einstein, is that the space around matter is curved, and, consequently, the shortest path for a ray of light, which is a measurement for both space and time, is a curved path. Euclidean geometry, which rests on the axiom that the shortest distance between two points is always a straight line, is therefore not applicable in gravitational fields.
